

BROWN AND LYNCH POST DRUM CORPS EQUIPPED

75 Men Completely Organized in
Easton — Concert August 31

The Brown and Lynch Post No. 9, American Legion Trumpet and Drum Corps composed of seventy-five men is now fully equipped and completely organized. The corps committee, Bart Reading, William Serfass, Clarence Deemer and Corp Commander Charles W. Neumoyer, are well pleased with the cooperation and enthusiasm accorded them in this great task and report rapid progress among the corps members.

The organization line-up consists of sixteen trumpets, fifty-one street drums, two bass drums, two cymbals, two banner bearers, two color bearers, two color guards, drum major and corps commander.

Corp Commander Neumoyer has had a life of unusual opportunities and musical connections to qualify him for the leadership of the organization. He has been identified with military and concert bands and orchestral organizations of merit for the past twenty years.

At the age of twelve he joined a concert band organized and conducted by his father, and has been closely associated with musical organizations to the present day. While serving in the United States Army during the World War he was connected with military band work during his entire enlistment. At the present time he is in tympanist in the Easton Symphony Orchestra.

The drum corps will make its first public appearance on August 21 when the automobile will be awarded in Center Square. They will later travel to the state convention of American Legion posts at Stroudsburg and to the national convention at Philadelphia.
